Aboard the ZR-3, over mid-Atlantic, Oct. 14, (3:31 a. m.), (by wireless) to International News Service).—West of the Azores we encountered gradually increasing southwesterly winds, which we were compelled to combat by changing to twelve hours. We then turned westerly direction to accomplish this, with a speed gradually decreasing to 30 miles an hour.

The wind then shifted to southwest, with a rapidity of 17 meters a second. After having familiarized ourselves with storm conditions, we took a northwesterly course at greater speed toward the guide ship "Milwaukee" which we hope to pass in the morning hours.

Then we make new plans regarding our course, after familiarizing ourselves with weather conditions around the Milwaukee.

The ship and machinery are in the best of condition.

New York, Oct. 14.—There was a scramble on the New York Stock Exchange at the opening this forenoon for bonds of the new $200,000,000 German loan. They sold to first buyers at 94 3/4 an advance of 2 3/4 points over the offering price of the J. P. Morgan syndicate. An advance of so much was considered unusual by traders, accustomed to see-

The banking house of Morgan and Company announced soon after the exchange opened that its books were

Other brokerage houses had taken the same action even before 10 o'clock, the hour of opening.

The bonds were offered first to small subscribers seeking amounts of $1,000 or $2,000. Subscribers for heavier sums had their allotment scaled down.

The market upon its opening here several hours after the start of trading in London, followed the pace set on the exchange there.

Police Carry On Hunt for Chapman

Telegraph to The Freeman.
New Britain, Conn., Oct. 14.—Police Officer James Skelly, victim of a gunman's pistol here on Sunday morning, was being laid to rest in a cemetery today, detectives from scores of cities spread out from the scene of the crime in a local department store, carrying on the hunt for Gerald Chapman, escaped federal prisoner who is charged with the murder. Edward J. Hickey, county detective and William D. McCue, local sergeant of detectives, have gone to Springfield, Mass., in the case, while federal and New York city operatives departed to other fields that apparently would add clues.

Walter Shean of Springfield held an accomplice of Chapman's in the murder and thereby held for trial on a charge that involves the death penalty, was safely placed in Hartford jail by Detectives Hickey and McCue before they went out of the state. While no official will say anything about the situation, it is understood that Shean's trial in the past few weeks has been followed closely. Shean himself has been engaged to marry in his cell, according to the police. He has refused to say word to any visitor and has been especially quiet before visiting newspapermen, not one having yet had an interview with him.

Thousands of New Britain citizens attended funeral services for policeman Skelly at St. Joseph's church this morning. Mayor Paonessa and all his city officials attended a body and acted as honorary bearers.

It is understood that no reward will be offered by the city for the apprehension of the policeman's slayer unless the state takes the case and offers a reward. In that event the city is expected to follow.

Soldiers of Opposing Armies Fraternize After Clashing—Defeated Soldiers Expected to Join Conquerors.

Telegraph to The Freeman.
Shanghai, Oct. 14.—A renewal of hostilities between the Kiangsu forces and the defeated and leaderless Chekiang soldiers was reported from Nanking late today.

Heavy rifle and machine gun fire broke out there at noon, the report said, and continued throughout the afternoon. It was believed, however, to be merely a local clash, as generally the defeated and victorious soldiers are fraternizing.

A steady stream of the defeated Chekiang troops and the victorious Kiangsu continues to flow into Shanghai. It was estimated tonight that 1,000 Chekiang soldiers, fully armed, have entered the city.

Making no attempt to disarm them, arriving Kiangsu troops were manifesting an air of complete indifference toward the 30,000 defeated Chekiang troops who, fully armed, are now encamped between Huang Tu and Shanghai.

It is believed the most of the defeated soldiers will join the conquering Kiangsu armies.

Mrs. O'Gorman is the daughter of Fred C. Newell, of Washington, D. C., first director of the United States Reclamation Service during the building of the famous Roosevelt Dam.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

John S. Root, who was employed as watchman at the Highland side of the Poughkeepsie bridge, died suddenly on Sunday, October 4, aged 63 years. An autopsy revealed a clot of blood in the heart. His wife and two sons, Oris and Harvey, all of Walden, survive.

James Cantine died at his home on Partition street, Saugerties, Saturday, following an extended illness. Mr. Cantine was a highly respected colored citizen and had been a member of the Methodist Church for forty years. He is survived by five daughters, Mrs. Harold Walker, of Youngstown, Ohio; Mrs. Albert Jackson and Mrs. Frank Irvin, of Albany; Mrs. D. H. Farnham, of Boston, Mass.; and Miss Catherine Cantine of Saugerties. The funeral was held this afternoon at the late residence.

Mrs. Sybil Stearnman, a native of Saugerties, died at her home in Union Hill, N. J., on Saturday last, in the 72nd year of her age. The remains were brought to Saugerties and services were conducted Monday afternoon by the Rev. J. C. Coddington. Interment was in Mountain View Cemetery. She is survived by five sisters, Mrs. John Simmons, Mrs. George Mower, Mrs. Henry Felter, Mrs. Charles Griffin and Miss Sarah Lynk and two brothers, Edward Lynk and Henry Lynk.

The funeral of Mrs. Alice Reilly, who died Thursday last at her home, 1,241 Tinton avenue, New York city, was held Saturday from the late residence, thence to St. Augustine's Church, where a requiem Mass was offered for the repose of her soul. The remains were brought to this city Saturday afternoon, upon the arrival of the 2:15 West Shore train. The funeral cortege was very large, attended by the deceased's many friends. There was also a profusion of flowers, a silent tribute of the esteem in which she was held. The interment was in the family plot in St. Mary's Cemetery, the Rev. Joseph B. Scully conducting the committal services.

Lumber From Sugar Cane

They are offering great claims for the new artificial lumber made of the waste fiber of sugar cane. Mills near New Orleans are already turning out half a million feet of this lumber every day.

A house built of this material, it is asserted by the Lincoln Journal, will be cool in summer, and warm in winter, and largely sound-proof. The lumber comes out of the mill in boards 12 feet wide and of indefinite length which can be cut to meet any needs, thus saving much labor.

As long as cane sugar is consumed there will be plenty of raw material to go into this lumber. It consists of a cane employed in the same way, a thing that does not seem impossible, the country need not be concerned over any possible timber famine.

Silk Night Dresses Are One of Season's Staples

Silk, once the most uncommon material for nightdress, has become the staple. The latest things are of chiffon, voile, georgette, sheerest mousseline elaborate with lace entre-deux, and in any color but white. From the most famous workshops of Paris are sent the most enchanting models in gowns, step-ins, chemises, slips, articles of lingerie of every kind and for every possible occasion. They are in lovely shades of green, from sea-green to emerald; in blues, turquoise, aquamarine, powder, gendarme, pastel and baby blue; in rose, orchid, peach, flesh, apricot, and in yellows shading from corn color to brilliant orange, for which there is a craze this season.

Scarlet and vermillion are shown in some of the most extreme styles, and black and white, and incredible as it may appear, black.

There is evident in the latest styles of lingerie from Parisian designers a judicious use of lace or other trimming that is fancy or perhaps the least degree clumsy. The best models are embroidered on the flat surface, and the lace entre-deux and the edgings are usually of delicate pattern. The pretty colored materials are delicately embroidered with needlework in white or in another shade or contrasting color.

White chemises and other things are effectively trimmed with narrow bands, squares and motifs of colored batiste or silk joined with fancy stitches in floss. Narrow, fine bands of fancy patterns, lace motifs and embroidery medallions, hemstitching and drawn work are popular ways of elaborating the otherwise simple models.

To most women the texture of voile is unattractive, but as with yarn stockings it may be tried with patience, and after a bit accepted with an even temper.

Hints About Fashions for Careful Dressers

If you are not the type to wear tailored effects you can find many interesting coats with soft roll collars that are much more flattering and just as effective.

A black satin gown on youthful lines is given a distinctive handling by the addition of an apron of Chinese red chiffon very finely plaited and bound with gold braid.

Navy blue and black organdie are used very knowingly this season and will be seen on people who have never felt it was smart enough for consideration.

Many frocks of dainty printed muslin show rounded overlapping flounces that give a graceful swing to the hemline.

A black satin tulle is relieved of any suggestion of plainness by a deep flange of gray georgette crepe. Gauntlet gloves are in vogue. They will be worn with the new coat-suits this fall.

Knitted silk underwear is very durable and can be had in any of the delicate pastel shades.

The college girl will appreciate the new brass-eyed oxfords, which are just the thing for sports. Cream-colored kid gloves are stylish. These should be worn with a dark frock or suit.

Dyed lace scarfs are being worn with evening gowns.

Novel Combination

A new frock of black crepe de chine has a deep collar of white crepe de chine. Below this is a deep flounce of light gray crepe rather after the fashion of an eon jacket, and below that another similar one of darker gray. A bit of red at neck adds a touch of color.

Eagles Have Long Life

The biological survey says that some species of eagles have been known to live a hundred years. From records kept by the zoological societies of London it is shown that specimens in captivity lived to be forty-two, forty-six and fifty-five years of age.

The time is short now to arrange for election at a national election day.

Raindrops Flat at Ends

Raindrops are not perfectly round. Recent pictures show that, contrary to popular opinion, they are flat at top and bottom, apparently due to pressure. The flattening makes each drop comparatively only about half its expected height.

Dairy Feed Good On State Farms

Cows on New York farms will have plenty of hay this winter, according to the combined state and federal crop report for October issued from the New York State Department of Farms and Markets. The crop has been heavy over most of the state. While wet weather interfered with harvest, and some hay was cut late, the quality is generally very good.

Corn, on the other hand, which grew rather rapidly in early September, began to go into silos about the fifteenth to avoid the frosts which are generally expected in the dairy sections the last of the month. There was considerable frost damage to that still standing. The fodder growth was greater than expected earlier in the season, but it was still very immature at harvest time.

The grain situation is about like last year, so far as home grown feeds are concerned. With a smaller acreage of oats, the rather large yield of 36 bushels per acre gives a total crop about the same size as that of last year. Buckwheat promises three-fourths of a million bushels more than last year on a slightly greater acreage.

Purchased feeds, however depend largely on the national crop situation. While the United States oat crop is much larger than last year, the corn crop, our great national feed grain, is half a billion bushels less and in general the heavy oat crops are in regions where corn is poor so that oats will be used as a substitute for corn to some extent. Corn and its by-products from the manufacture of starch and syrup are among our most important dairy feeds. The United States wheat crop is substantially larger than last year but the world crop is short and prices have advanced. The price of bran and middlings will depend to some extent on whether the wheat is milled in this country and flour exported or whether the whole grain is exported.

Flaxseed production is more than 62 per cent larger than last year and three times as large as the average of the previous five years. Cotton production is also high, greater production now being promised than in any year since 1914. The large crops of these two sources of the high protein feeds, cottonseed and linseed oil meal should favor New York dairymen.

For current milk production, the pastures are well above average and are much better than last year. After-feed on meadows is abundant and is being well used. Pastures in other dairy states are generally good also.

Forestry Experts Urge Bond Issue

Believe it is Necessary for State to Increase Forest Holdings and Ask Voters to Favor Bond Issue Election Day.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 14.—The state of New York needs forest parks as no other state needs them for protecting its water supply and conserving the health of the people. Forest parks are also important to the free expansion of business.

The concentration of population in the Empire State makes a large, well distributed, efficiently organized park system a necessity. It is estimated that in the short period of years the population of the state will reach 14 million and that of New York city 8 million.

A new park system and a council of state parks to manage it has been proposed through a bond issue of 15 million dollars. This bond issue has received the approval of both branches of the legislature and the governor and is being submitted to the voters in November for their endorsement. The council serves without pay except for the cost of its secretarial work. There is no private interest involved and no politics. It is entirely a public welfare movement demanded by the continued growth of our commonwealth. The measure is backed by 37 organizations which include all agencies interested in conservation and recreation.

More than twenty parks, all of the old ones and many new ones, will be brought into a single system. These playgrounds will serve the entire state from Montauk to the Adirondacks and from the Palisades to the Adirondacks so the greatest convenience to the largest number will be secured. The money will be used for the purchase of land, maintenance and protection.

The New York State College of Forestry at Syracuse University urges the adoption of the bond issue. The principal and interest on the bonds will cost about 7 cents annually for each person until fully paid. Forest land is increasing in value. For the state in particular it is a profitable purchase. This is convincingly shown by the acquisition of the people have already made in the forest. Today it is worth from a commercial appraisal alone, 60 million dollars.

But it is worth a great deal more than that when its recreational value is considered. There are hundreds of miles of excellent frontage along the shores of such picturesque lakes as Raquette and Lower Saranac that as camp sites represent enormous sums of money.

Those who appreciate the privileges these unusually fine, free playgrounds will give and will continue to give in increasing value to the men, women and children of New York through all generations, as the demand for more and wider breathing spaces continues, will not fail to vote for the park bond issue in November. It is a call to humanity for humanity.

Fruit Crops in New York Fair

New York state's apple crop as given in the combined state and federal crop report for October issued from the Department of Farms and Markets, now stands at 23,803,000 bushels, total crop, and 3,729,000 barrels, commercial crop, which are slightly below the September forecast. Last year's crop was 24,090,000 bushels of which 3,900,000 barrels were classed as commercial. Sales of smaller sizes than usual for shipment rather than their use for cider and drying may force a larger percentage of the crop into the commercial class than the above figures indicate.

The crop of early varieties was fairly heavy but the winter varieties are running light.

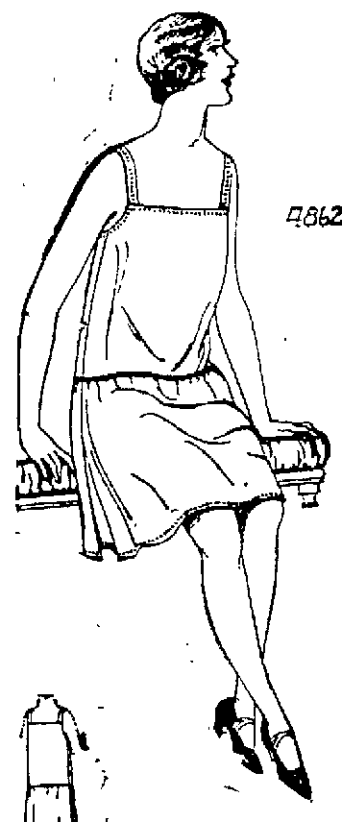

The brightest part of the outlook for New York growers is in the relatively small crops of the strongly competing states. While Virginia has a larger crop than last year by 20 per cent, Pennsylvania and Michigan each have only two-thirds, Washington three-fifths and Oregon four-fifths as many as last year. The United States crop as a whole is the poorest since 1921. The total crop is forecast at 174,870,000 bushels compared with 196,770,000 bushels last year, and the commercial part of the crop is placed at 25,942,000 barrels, or nearly a fourth less than the 1923 production of 34,403,000 barrels.

Peach harvest was unusually late. No new estimate of production was made on October 1st but carlot movement was considerably larger than last year to that date and was in line with the September forecast of 2,178,000 bushels compared with 1,700,000 bushels last year.

Pears in New York have produced much better than last year with the 1924 forecast of production placed at 1,953,000 bushels. Only 1,060,000 bushels were produced last year. The United States crop of 17,610,000 bushels is only slightly larger than last year's and is above average.

In the case of grapes, the crop forecast of 77,000 tons is well above the crop of 62,000 tons in 1923 though below the 105,900 tons reported in 1922. The crop in Pennsylvania, Ohio and Michigan are slightly above last year, while California has nearly 400,000 tons less. In the Hudson Valley, less than 60 per cent of the crop was ripe October 1 and in the western New York belt only 4 per cent. It was estimated that about all of the Concord would be ripe by October 15 and the Catawba ten days to two weeks later if severe frosts do not interfere.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Oct. 14.—Professional stock traders pounded the market from the opening gong today in an effort to dislodge stocks and to force a general liquidation in industrial and railroad shares. With the exception of the oil stocks, which appeared to be in a sold-out condition, the bears were in complete control of the situation today, and prices tumbled from 2 to 5 points from Saturday's high level.

Rallies near the mid-day in some sections of the list followed the announcement of the great success of the German loan, and prices moved higher, but increases in prices of active shares seemed to be the signal for another deluge of selling, and fresh declines were in order.

American Can bore the brunt of the speculative selling, and after opening fractionally higher at 130 1/4 it sold down to 126 for a loss of 4 points; Baldwin declined from 120 1/4 to around 116; Woolworth from 106 1/2 to 103; Cast Iron Pipe from 111 to 108 1/2; United States Steel from 107 to 105 1/4; New York Central from 106 to 103 1/4; Gulf States Steel from 69 1/2 to 68; Stewart Warner from 55 1/2 to 54.

Representative copper, sugar, motor, equipment and railroad stocks were sold at losses of a point or more, with occasional dips to new low prices for the year. Chandler Motor sold at record low of 30 1/4; Standard Plate Glass was pushed down to 14 1/4, or 3 points below its previous low record for 1924; New Haven at 21 1/4 was back to the starting point of its last rally to 59 1/4.

USHER'S CLUB TO HOLD ENTERTAINMENT FRIDAY

The Usher's Club of the Roundout Presbyterian Church will present "Happy Harry" Hayden of New York city in his unique program of mirth, music and magic Friday evening at 8:15 in the chapel.

Mr. Hayden comes to Kingston very highly recommended and is a high class artist in every particular. His versatility and ability has placed him in the front rank of clever entertainers. His numbers, whether comic song, playing his own accompaniment, a classical or popular selection on the banjo, a dialect story or a mystifying experiment in magic, are always sure to win hearty and appreciative applause.

The Usher's Club feel very fortunate in being able to secure Mr. Hayden for Friday evening and hope that there will be a large attendance to enjoy this program. Proceeds of the entertainment is for the calendar fund. Tickets can be obtained from members of the Sunday School, Usher's Club or at the door the evening of the entertainment.

CURRENT OFFERINGS AT THE THEATRES

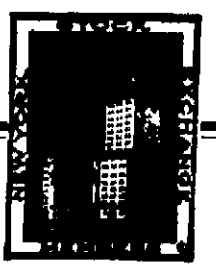

Herbert Brennon's picturization of James Oliver Curwood's gripping story, "The Alaskan," pleased large audiences at the Keeney Theatre on Monday. "The Alaskan" is the first story of the great northwest that Thomas Meighan has ever appeared in. His personality suits the title role which he portrays. Here is a story of a man who fights not only for a great love, but for a great cause—the preservation of Alaska for the native Alaskans.

A story of a savage campaign, in which more than 10,000 men, women and children perished, in which whole settlements were razed, acres of grain fired, and in which some of the most courageous fighting of the War of American Independence took place, that David Wark Griffith depicts in "The Sign of the Cross," now at the Kingston Opera House. Against the hordes of redskins and painted Tories, who drank with greed, bestiality and strong spirits, invaded the peaceful valleys fighting with the fury of fatalistic madness, the little colonies of settlers made brave stands, and no portion of history is so replete with records of individual heroism as that which tells of this campaign, from which Griffith has drawn some of his most telling and most dramatic scenes.

At the Auditorium tonight, the "Painted Youth" girl, Colleen Moore in "Painted People." Colleen Moore is supported by an unusual cast, including such stars as Ben Lyon, Mary Carr, Mary Alden, Charles Murray, Russell Simpson, Anna Q. Nilsson, Bull Montana, June Elvidge, Sam De Grasse, Charlotte Merriam and Joseph Striker.

"The Sea Hawk" sailed out upon the screen at the Orpheum Theatre Monday and trained his big guns on a large audience. "The Sea Hawk" is Frank Lloyd's picture version of Sabatini's colorful epic which is re-told by First National. It is a great story; has an exceptional cast and possesses every element of really great entertainment. The picture will be shown here all this week.

Analyzing a REAL ESTATE BOND

Moody's Investors Service says—
"There is no better security in the world than a high grade real estate bond, where the offering circular frankly—shows the valuation of the land and buildings, naming the appraisers; discloses that some well-known bank or trust company is Trustee;
shows that the bondholder's funds are covered by the mortgage during construction period; indicates by the ratio of property value to bond issue that the margin of security is ample."

Protect Motor Club Members

American Automobile Association Seeking to Make It Unlawful for Non-Members to Display Club Emblems.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—Protection for motor club members through legislation making it unlawful for a motorist to display on his car the emblem of an organization of which he is not a member is being advocated by the American Automobile Association, according to a bulletin just issued from its national headquarters at Washington, D. C.
The association would like to see on the statute books of every state a duplicate of the law now operative in Maryland and has taken steps to seek the cooperation of its many affiliated clubs to this end.

The general motor vehicle law of the state of Maryland provides that "It shall be unlawful for any person to display upon a motor vehicle the insignia or emblem of any motor vehicle club or similar organization, unless he shall be entitled to use the same under the constitution, by-laws, rules or regulations of such club or organization."

In commenting upon the matter, Thomas P. Henry, president of the A. A. A., said that the insignia of a national organization like the Three A's is a mark of progressive car ownership and that its misuse should be just as much of a misdemeanor as stamping it as "sterling" or appropriating a trade-mark.

"A. A. A. members rely upon their insignia to gain the confidence of motor club road representatives, garagemen, hotelmen and tourists as they travel about the country," he declares, "and to have non-members illegally using these emblems is to encourage forfeiture of many of these advantages. From our Washington headquarters every effort will be made to discourage this practice through the passage of state laws condemning it, but at the same time we believe that a very material assistance can be given to organized motorism through cooperation from members themselves.
"If you suspect that someone is using an emblem illegally by all means report the instance to your local automobile club. Persons who keep their emblems on their cars when they are no longer members are enjoying service and the respect of the community which is not due them. If they are not amenable to reason they should be so listed that their club badge will be recognized as not being genuine.

"A. A. A. club members can support their local organizations in the work of advocating state laws as we now find in Maryland. With legislation to back us up it would be a far simpler matter to prevent illegal use of emblems, for the violator could not continue to enjoy service he is not entitled to once he was discovered."

Flashlight Saves Boys

Three Racine (Wis.) youths, Sidney Burman, Howard DeFault and Marvin Nelson, owe their lives to an electric pocket flashlight. They left Racine one afternoon recently for Milwaukee aboard a naval reserve cutter. A storm came up, the cutter turned turtle and the three clung to it for three hours. Then, one of them pulled out his flashlight and began flashing a distress signal. A nearby United States coast guard station picked up this signal and rescued the boys.

No Way to Treat a Lady

George Elliott, forty-one-year-old laborer, according to the divorce bill of Mrs. Flossie Elliott, filed in Superior court, became enraged at her on one occasion and kicked the windshield out of their automobile. Other allegations of cruelty are made.—From a news item in the Seattle Times.

Veterans' Bureau Looking for Site

Modern 1,000 Bed Hospital for World War Veterans Must Be Erected Within Reasonable Distance of New York.

Disabled veterans suffering from mental disorders residing in District No. 2, of the United States Veterans' Bureau, will have a modern one thousand bed hospital at their disposal, as a committee, composed of General George Albert Wingate, Dr. Henry A. Cotton and Dr. Thomas W. Salmon is busy investigating sites offered.

Several weeks ago General Frank T. Hines, director of the United States Veterans' Bureau, appointed this committee with the request that it look into available sites within a radius of some sixty miles of New York. Many sites have been offered, and they are being carefully considered by the committee.

"The committee will investigate any site offered," said General Wingate yesterday but it must be remembered that the committee is interested in tracts of land comprising not less than 500 acres, situated rather close to New York city with proper transportation facilities.

"We have had many sites suggested, and are investigating them all. We desire to recommend to General Hines the use of a plot of ground which will give the veterans of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, the best N. P. hospital in the country, and will take our time."
General Wingate, who is chairman of the directors' committee, will be glad to receive plans, blue prints and specifications of any plots of ground falling within the radius mentioned, with full and complete information as to drainage, sewerage, transportation arrangements and any other information necessary. He should be addressed care the District Manager, U. S. Veterans' Bureau, 480 Lexington avenue, New York city.

Home of Half-Million Gulls

Ravenglass, on the coast of Cumberland, England, is one of the greatest haunts of seagulls (commonly called gulleries) on the British coast. Their breeding season ended with the last days of June. These beautiful birds are of the black-headed variety, and the chief game warden estimates that there are over 500,000 birds, which is regarded as a most conservative estimate. The gallery is situated on the Muncester Castle estate.

Uncomplimentary Wit

Like the Scotch, the English can relish a joke on their native peculiarities. A recent book of British reminiscences includes this little-known story of the old duchesse de Duras and Montmond, the French wit. The duchesse asked the famous wit, "In your opinion, what animal the most closely resembles man?" Montmond reflected for a minute and then replied, gravely, "L'Anglais, duchesse."

Interpreting

A poet, in fact, like any other artist, must not simply transcribe nature. He must interpret her; and as she is too vast to be interpreted under all her aspects, he must select. Whether this selection is conscious or unconscious, it must be prompted not merely by his physical environment, but also by his intellectual attitude toward external nature.—E. E. Sikes.

TODAY WE CELEBRATE

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY.
The first president of King's College, now Columbia University, in New York, was Dr. Samuel Johnson, who was born in Guilford, Conn., 228 years ago today, October 14, 1696, and died in 1792. After his graduation from Yale he was ordained a Congregational minister, and later went to England to receive Episcopal ordination. He was offered the presidency of the University of Pennsylvania, but refused it. In 1763 he was invited to accept the presidency of the newly founded college in New York and accepted. In addition to teaching classes he helped to plan the college edifices and to raise funds in England for the endowment of the infant institution, which is today one of the world's greatest universities. He resigned from the presidency of the college in 1763, and returned to his ministerial duties in Stratford, Conn., where he died.

SUFFRAGETTES.
The first outbreak of the militant suffragettes of England took place sixteen years ago yesterday, when Mrs. Pankhurst and her followers declared war on the government, and adopted tactics that set all England in a turmoil, particularly the official and police departments. Their declaration of hostilities was contained in poster scattered all over London, it called for help to "rush" the House of Commons on Tuesday evening, October 13, at 7:30. The government responded by jailing Mrs. Pankhurst, her daughter and Mrs. Drummond, the leading spirits of the movement. Despite all the official precautions, however, one lone woman, Mrs. Travers Symonds, succeeded in getting to the floor of the House, and actually making a speech before she was arrested.

BATTLE OF HASTINGS.
The first concluded visit of the heir to the English throne to these United States, recalls the fact that today is the 858th anniversary of the first great turning point in English history, i. e. the Battle of Hastings, when the Norman army of invasion, under William the Conqueror defeated the Saxons under King Harold II who was killed. When the news reached the brave king of the landing of the Normans, Harold rushed forth to meet them with an inadequate force. Had he awaited reinforcements the results might have been different and today England might still be ruled by a Saxon King. William realized that any prospects of success he had lay in striking, at once, a decisive blow before Harold could muster his forces. Had King Harold retreated, leading the Normans far into a hostile country, he could have defeated them at a leisure, but then he was not of a retreating kind. On the night before the battle Harold's soldiers drank ale and wine, feasted and made merry, while William's troops devoted themselves to the rites of religion. "By the Splendor of God, this land, as far as it extends, is mine," William had declared on landing, and the battle made good his boast. The Saxons had the best of the struggle until the afternoon, when William ordered his cavalry to advance, and then fly, as it routed. The Saxons pursued and fell into an ambush and were cut to pieces. Harold was killed and William the Conqueror "hacked his way" to the throne of England.

RICKARD TO STAGE

FULTON-FIRPO BOUT

New York, Oct. 14.—Tex Rickard declared today that he planned to go through with the proposed Fulton-Firpo bout at Madison Square Garden on November 1, in spite of Fulton's recent defeat at the hands of Martin Burke. "I think big men like this pair would put up a remarkable bout," Rickard said. "In any case, I mean to try my idea out."

McGraw and Dolan Conferred.
By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Oct. 14.—It was reported today that John McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, and Cory Dolan, his ex-coach, who was banished from baseball for alleged attempted bribery, held a two-hour conference last night just before McGraw left to join his club on a tour of the world. Impressive Grid Games Saturday

Results of Saturday's Football Struggles May Determine National Ranking—Illinois-Michigan and Army-Notre Dame, the Big Numbers.
(By Davis J. Walsh.)
By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Oct. 14.—Sectional, intersectional and possible national ranking may be determined by the outcome of Saturday's football games, comprising in toto the most impressive list ever compiled for an October week-end. Even at that immature date, it is altogether possible that the day will uncover a team that is destined to go to national recognition as the championship outfit of 1924.

Illinois and Michigan are potential candidates for that high honor. They will meet in the big number of the western conference schedule on Saturday, and barring a tie, will decide middle western supremacy for the moment. This game outranks in consequence even the Army-Notre Dame affair at the Polo Grounds, fairly bristling as it does with intersectional significance.

Unlike the Army and Notre Dame game, which conduct an annual series to the Army's annual regret, Michigan and Illinois haven't met in some years. Both laid just claim to the conference title in 1923, however, the Saturday's game was arranged with the idea of deciding something. It will.

Other meetings of consequence in the west call for Wisconsin to play Minnesota, Nebraska to take on Colgate and Southern California to face the Oregon Aggies in a cost conference game. All are of almost national importance.

But they are no more so than the Dartmouth-Yale game at New Haven nor the Princeton-Navy meeting at Princeton. Usually, there are eight days in the week every time two such meetings occur at one and the same time. Dartmouth is on its way back, after several misfit seasons, and thinks it has a possible champion. Yale was the joint leader of the east last year and many thought it had the best team in the country. As a study in concentrated class, this game will do until a better one turns up.

Neither Princeton nor the Navy has early season strength this year but big timers will be big timers, even when they use small time stuff.

Harvard and Holy Cross, Cornell and Rutgers, Syracuse and Boston College, and Washington and Jefferson and Carnegie Tech also will furnish the big moments in the east. In the west, barring games already mentioned, it will be Chicago and Indiana and Stanford-Oregon.

The south must look to Tulane and Vanderbilt and Penn State and George Tech for its leaders. A defeat for any of the teams mentioned, while not necessarily conclusive, would have a definite effect upon its final status. The same applies to the games involving Alabama and Sewanee and Kentucky and Washington and Lee.

Cohens Exhibit New Kind of Fowl

Turkeys are Cross Between a Turkey and a Chicken—They are Exceptional Layers and Eggs Hatch in 21 Days.

In the window of S. Cohen's Sons clothing store on Wall street is a pen of the most unusual looking fowls ever exhibited in Kingston. The fowls, a rooster and three hens, resemble both a turkey and a chicken and are known as turken fowls, being a cross between a turkey and a chicken.

The male bird has two feathers on the very top of his head that he raises at will, like a crest. His neck is bright turkey red, entirely free from feathers to the top of his breast. He is a cross between a turkey and a Brahma hen. The pullets have bare necks like the rooster, except that they have a small tuft of feathers part way down the neck in front. The necks are just turning red. The rooster has feathers on his head from the top down to the level of his eyes all around.

The fowls which were placed on exhibition in the S. Cohen's Sons windows today, attract a great deal of attention and cause considerable discussion as to their origin. They will be exhibited in the store until Saturday night when they will be taken to the Cohen farm on Hurley avenue, where they will be bred.

The turken fowls, which are the result of a cross between a turkey and a hen. This cross by some is said to be impossible but in the days of the Caesars the Romans feasted on hybrid fowls, and the historian Gibbon in his "Rise and Fall of the Roman Empire" says "that this was produced by crossing the Mediterranean turkey with the common barnyard fowl." and from Ireland comes the story of the Churkey, claimed to be a fowl resulting from a cross between the turkey and chicken. Therefore it appears that "there is nothing new under the sun" although the exhibit in the Cohen window is new to Kingston.

The male bird shows his cross breeding, has a decided turkey gait with a long neck. The birds are said to grow large, from 8 to 14 pounds and lay a large brown egg. Young chicks are much like the turkey chicks and their gait is similar but they need only the same care and feed of common chickens.

The queer looking fowls are also claimed to be exceptional layers laying as high as 200 eggs per year. The eggs hatch in 21 days and the meat is a blend of turkey and chicken. Turken are also tame and gentle and make excellent back-yard fowls.

Summer Babies Are Healthier

Experiments Satisfy Scientists That Babies Born in Spring or Summer Are Better, But Electric Light Overcomes Handicap of Others.
By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Bangor, Maine, Oct. 14.—Artificial electric sunlight is more healthful than the actual solar rays under certain conditions, Dr. C. C. Little, president of the University of Maine, and Dr. W. T. Bovie, professor of biophysics in the Harvard medical school, announced today after a series of experiments.

The experiments were conducted with chicks at the university, with the health of babies in mind. It was found that powerful ultra violet electric rays, obtained with the aid of fused quartz mercury vapor, when directed upon chicks produced a more robust type than those warmed in sunlight filtered through window glass.

Ordinary window glass, it was explained, is opaque to ultra violet rays in the sun. It is these rays which possess health-giving qualities. The chicks warmed by the filtered sunlight developed rickets and weighed a fifth of the weight of the artificially-warmed chicks.

One thing determined by the experiments, the experimenters said, was that a child born in the spring or early summer and exposed to the sun without it being filtered through window glass, is apt to be more healthy than an autumn or winter baby.

"These experiments," explained Dr. Bovie, "are quite applicable to the rearing of children. For the disease known as rickets is a disease of calcium metabolism and a disease which can be cured by a proper exposure to ultra violet light."

"The disease records of every big city show that from 9 to 100 per cent of all babies raised in northern countries, where it is necessary to keep the children indoors and to use window glass to shut out the cold, have rickets when examined in the spring."

"Undoubtedly many other physiological processes are involved. We may expect to find the same factors influencing the growth rate of children as has been found in those experiments with children."

THIN FOLKS! PUT MORE RED IN YOUR BLOOD

Thin folks who are weakened and run down and who want to build themselves up with firm solid flesh need to do something to tone and strengthen the blood. The best way to accomplish this is through the use of Burke's Cod Liver Oil and Iron Tablets. This is a new scientific discovery that the most potent tonic in the world is the finest Cod Liver Oil combined with iron, and the most powerful blood purifier, pleasant-to-take sugar coated tablets. Thin folks are usually thin because they need more iron in the blood to give them strength and vigor. As there are no imitations on the market said to contain Cod Liver Oil and Iron Tablets, (Don't get to mention Iron when you see the word Cod Liver Oil.) Every druggist supplies this treatment for $1.00—the most economical way you can buy.
